I. PASTORAL COUNCIL BYLAWS

The parish pastoral council bylaws comprises a document which enumerates the items that give expression and definition to the governing principles and procedures for the council. It can be a different document for each parish, since parishes differ. The council should be prepared to take the time and effort to produce a document suited to its own unique situation. There are, however, certain basic elements which appear in bylaws if it is to be a living and effective document.

The pastoral council should reflect the make-up of the parish. There is great diversity in our diocese and our parishes. Diversity exists in age, gender, race, ethnicity, economy, education, and theology. That diversity of each parish should be reflected in the bylaws of the respective councils.

A. Basic Elements

1. PREAMBLE: The preamble expresses the basic identity, the nature, and the purpose of the group (the parish) which is establishing the document.

2. NAME: Simply the name by which the council is to be known.

5. MEMBERSHIP: This section states who the members of the council are to be; the distinction between ex-officio members, at-large representatives and special representatives is made here.

Nominations are as important as elections. They should be carefully designed to ensure that the council is as representative of the parish as possible.

8. OFFICERS: This section states what officers are elected on the council, their terms of office, and their duties. This is also a good place to deal with the incidence of vacancies in offices.
