FIGHTING FOR THE EDUCATION, FINANCIAL STABILITY, HEALTH AND BASIC NEEDS OF EVERY PERSON IN OUR COMMUNITY.
OUR VISION

Central Indiana will be a community where children, individuals and families thrive; neighbors care for each other; and we are proud of all our residents’ quality of life.

WHAT WE DO

United Way of Central Indiana fights for the education, financial stability, health and basic needs of every person in its community.

DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION

United Way of Central Indiana strives to maximize our impact on the community by creating and sustaining an environment that leverages the creativity and innovation that result from the unique perspectives that individuals bring.

We believe that our community is best served when diversity and inclusion are embedded in everything we do. As such, we encourage active participation of our team: including our employees, volunteers, donors, advocates and community partners.
Dear Friends of United Way of Central Indiana–

Next year, United Way of Central Indiana launches into what might be the most exciting year in our history – our 100th anniversary.

Can you believe it? 100 years. There are very few people, businesses and organizations that make it to the centennial category, which is why we don’t take one moment – or more importantly, one person – for granted. Because of our donors, partner agencies, volunteers and our advocates, United Way has stood the test of time and made a considerable impact on millions of residents, families, children and our community.

But even after 100 years, United Way has discovered that its brand – one of the most recognized in the world – is not easily understood. Ask yourself, can you describe what United Way does in a few words? If you can’t, we understand. It’s hard to talk about the real issues that our community faces – extreme poverty, mental health, unstable families, homelessness, and childhood literacy. But these are the problems that must be faced, and solved, for our community to thrive.

In this Annual Report, you’ll see we have a refreshed way of describing the work we do, the people we serve, the partnerships we’ve made, and the encouraging results we’ve achieved. If we all LIVE UNITED, then we must fight for the education, financial stability, health and basic needs of every person in our community (there’s your elevator speech).

Taking this a step further, we know we win this fight by forging unlikely partnerships in our community. We must find new solutions to old problems. We need to mobilize the best resources. And we want to inspire you – our donors, volunteers and advocates – to join us in this fight against our community’s most daunting social crises.

To live better, we must LIVE UNITED. It’s as simple as that. We hope you continue to fight with us as we celebrate next year’s anniversary and the next 100 years to come!

Ann Murtlow and Connie Bond Stuart
In 1887, a woman, a priest, two ministers and a rabbi in Denver, Colorado, joined together to tackle the city's most pressing issue: extreme poverty. They spearheaded a charitable campaign to distribute funds to as many relief agencies as possible in order to make the biggest impact. These unlikely partners united – and the United Way “movement” began.

Fast forward to 1918, when the movement arrived in Indianapolis in the form of a War Chest, designed to visibly display the community's generosity in a time of great need in the city. Every person was asked to contribute something – anything – which resulted in almost $3 million in pledges and donations (in today's dollars, that's more than $50 million!). Thanks to thousands of caring citizens, the War Chest provided much support to relief agencies throughout the region.
Decades later, United Way became a community fund, designed to be the central organization supporting a network of agencies that supported those in need with a hand up, rather than a hand out. United Way refocused its priorities on helping people on their path to self-sufficiency.

Today, United Way of Central Indiana is on the cusp of its 100th anniversary celebration. We have transformed into a social impact organization that takes on the big, complex, even daunting issues that face our community.

And, we fight.
We fight for the education, financial stability, health and basic needs of every person in our community.
WHAT WE FIGHT FOR.

WHO WE FIGHT FOR.

At United Way of Central Indiana, partner agencies and educational organizations are critical in helping us achieve our bold community goals.

MEET QUORTNEY:

After being released from prison after her three-year sentence, Quortney emerged into society alone. Like so many other former inmates, she struggled finding a job or housing she could afford. She knew she needed help, and she found it with the United Way partner agency, Volunteers of America of Indiana (VOAIN).

VOAIN helped Quortney get back on her feet through its re-entry services, including helping her find temporary housing and plan for her future. Quortney learned how to make the changes necessary to stay happy, healthy, employed and out of the criminal justice system.

“VOLUNTEERS OF AMERICA GAVE ME HOPE THAT MY FUTURE COULD BE DIFFERENT FROM THE LIFE I LED BEFORE.”

After living at VOAIN, Quortney went to school to be a pharmacy tech and now works at Community Health Network. Today, she gives back as a mentor to mothers at a women’s prison.

MEET STEPHEN:

Growing up on a farm in Alabama, Stephen learned at an early age what it meant to work hard. From the outside looking in, life appeared normal for Stephen, but between farm chores, divorced parents and bullies at his school, times weren’t always easy.

Through some trying adolescent years, Stephen found that reading allowed him to cope. Despite his advanced reading level, the school insisted that Stephen be placed in special education, where he grew increasingly bored and was constantly taunted by his peers. Then, Stephen’s mother passed away. Stephen had to drop out of high school to travel with his father in a search of higher-wage jobs. But finding jobs wasn’t easy, so the father-son duo slept in their car or on the streets.

In time, Stephen found a job as a housekeeper at a hospital and eventually saved up enough money for an apartment. They made ends meet for the next 14 years, but when Stephen was unexpectedly fired from his job, he was left with few options. To make matters worse, Stephen’s father became ill and passed away, leaving him depressed and alone. While searching for another job, Stephen depleted his savings, retirement and unemployment. He was evicted from his apartment and once again became homeless. Not knowing where to turn, Stephen walked into the John Boner Neighborhood Center, a United Way partner agency. “This time, I wanted help for real,” he said.

Through the Center for Working Families at The Boner Center, Stephen began creating a sustainable plan of action with the assistance of a social worker, financial coach and career coach.

“TODAY I WAKE UP THANKFUL AND GRATEFUL FOR WHAT I HAVE.”

Through this approach, Stephen traded in his two part-time jobs, for one higher paying job. He was accepted into the Boner Center’s housing program. Today, with the help of Center for Working Families, Stephen’s credit score and net worth have increased significantly, and he is in the process of obtaining his driver’s license. From there, his career plan is to acquire his commercial driver’s license so he will have an industry-recognized credential, which will lead him into a field that will prepare him for retirement. He also aspires to one day publish a novel he has written. Stephen’s outlook on life has changed tremendously.

This year, the Center for Working Families served 4,168 individuals. The Center for Working Families network consists of nine United Way agencies and Ivy Tech Community College. United Way hopes to expand CWF throughout the six-county region.

MEET KENDRA:

“My daughter, Bailie, is in her second year at the Day Early Learning Lilly Family Center. This program is a game-changer for me and my girl. I can be at work not worrying about the quality of my daughter’s education, and Bailie can be a part of an environment that is educational, fun, supportive and structured. She’ll be ready and confident for Kindergarten!

But Bailie wouldn’t be here if we didn’t receive an On My Way Pre-K Scholarship that we luckily won last year. The cost of quality pre-k can be daunting to many families who struggle making ends meet. I’m grateful every day for the opportunity that Bailie has to attend this wonderful pre-k program. We were lucky and in the right zip code.

But, really, why should our kids’ education be determined by zip code or luck of the draw?

Thanks to the wonderful staff and teachers at Lilly Family Center and United Way leading the way for pre-k, Bailie and I are proud to be pre-k champions!”

April 22, 2017 was a landmark day for families like Kendra and Bailie, as the General Assembly voted to double Indiana’s pre-k program for low-income children. Led by United Way, the AllIN4Prek coalition of corporate partners, educators and civic organizations successfully lobbied for doubling the funding to $22 million and expanding the state’s On My Way Pre-K program from 5 to 20 counties.
In fiscal year 2015-16, nearly 57,000 donors and other funders contributed $61,230,934 in total revenue to help achieve United Way of Central Indiana’s community impact goals.

United Way is committed to the strategic, wise and effective use of every donor dollar, and we strive to be transparent with our finances. As of June 30, 2016, United Way’s net assets totaled $156,117,125, which includes significant endowed and restricted funds.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway’s Jimmie McMillian took the ride of his life across country on his Harley-Davidson – all for the sake of challenging his senior leadership to give to United Way.

“DURING THE TWO-THOUSAND-MILE JOURNEY, I THOUGHT ABOUT HOW UNITED WAY PROGRAMS IMPACT PEOPLE’S LIVES. WE CAN’T TAKE THESE PROGRAMS FOR GRANTED.”

– Jimmie McMillian, Senior Corporate Counsel at Indianapolis Motor Speedway
We are #ALLIN4Pre-K!
More than 500 people – United Way donors and affinity groups, educators, parents and civic leaders – representing all corners of the state advocated at the Statehouse on Jan. 25, 2017. In addition, United Way was proud to lead the ALL IN 4 Pre-K coalition, which included Early Learning Indiana, Lilly, PNC Bank, Cummins, Salesforce, the Indy Chamber, the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, the Indiana United Ways, the United Ways of Allen, Grant, Vanderburgh and Jackson counties and many others.

– Gov. Eric Holcomb, Apr. 26, 2017

Get on the Bus!
The coalition for mass transit celebrated a victory on Feb. 27, 2017, as the City-County Council voted in favor of an income tax increase for expanded mass transit options. United Way served as a proud partner in the “Indy Drives Transit” advocacy effort.

For 40 years, Sarah and John Lechleiter have LIVED UNITED through their significant gifts, volunteer work and advocacy for issues critical to our community’s success. On Aug. 12, 2016, Sarah and John pledged the largest individual gift in United Way’s history – $5 million – which was matched by Lilly Foundation for a total of $10 million in impact toward early childhood education, financial stability for families and United Way Worldwide global initiatives.

A 60-member team from Crowe Horwath raised $2,000 to build 200 hygiene kits for United Way partner agencies HVAF, Julian Center and Horizon House. Included in these basic needs kits were personal notes of encouragement for the recipients.

VOLUNTEERS

This year, thousands of volunteers rolled up their sleeves and gave their time and talent for United Way of Central Indiana agencies, causes, events and programs.
LEADING THE FIGHT FOR OUR COMMUNITY.

United Way of Central Indiana is a leader in striving for positive outcomes for struggling Hoosier families. In order to drive transformational change, United Way forms partnerships, mobilizes resources and finds solutions to our community’s most pressing problems.

Great Families 2020 – Improving Lives, Transforming Neighborhoods
On Aug. 18, 2016, the federal government’s Corporation for National and Community Service (CNCS) awarded United Way of Central Indiana a $7 million Social Innovation Fund (SIF) grant to address family instability in five Indianapolis neighborhoods. United Way was the first organization in Central Indiana to receive a SIF grant.

With matching resources from United Way and other selected agencies, the investment into the community will total $20.6 million over the next three years.

In early 2017, the first grant recipients for Great Families 2020 were named in a special ceremony at Indianapolis’ Brookside Park. The winners were Edna Martin Christian Center, John Boner Neighborhood Centers, East Tenth United Methodist Children and Youth Center and Englewood Christian Church.

Senator Joe Donnelly, Senator Todd Young, Congressman Andre Carson and Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett were in attendance to congratulate the winners.

“EVERYONE DESERVES TO LIVE IN AN INDIANAPOLIS FILLED WITH SAFE, THRIVING NEIGHBORHOODS WHERE FAMILIES HAVE OPPORTUNITIES FOR SUCCESS.”

– Mayor Joe Hogsett

ReadUP: When you learn to read, you read to learn.
Thanks to more than a thousand volunteer tutors, United Way’s ReadUP program helps early school-aged children get on track – and stay on track – with their reading levels. For most kids, caring, attentive adults are the difference between academic success and failure.

MEET READUP TUTOR, ABBY:

When Abby volunteered to be a United Way ReadUP tutor, she was partnered with Aries. “My first day I was very, very nervous and unsure of what to expect,” Abby admitted. But Aries’ lively and funny personality quickly put her at ease.

One of the first things Abby noticed was Aries’ fear of chapter books. She didn’t know if she could read them so she would often avoid them completely. Abby wanted to help Aries conquer her fear, and she convinced her to just start reading a little “It’s your money, and we want to help you get it,” says Brent Frymier, a Huntington Bank employee and longtime Indy Free Tax Prep volunteer. Administered by United Way, Indy Free Tax Prep is a network of Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) sites that operates with one goal in mind: help ensure that low-income residents receive all the eligible tax credits and deductions they deserve.

For client Patricia Brant, getting the most back in a refund really matters. “To receive several hundred dollars – that’s a lot of money for a single mom like me. That’s a utility bill, a week’s worth of groceries or a nice deposit in a savings account.”

Thanks to our network of donors, volunteers and advocates, United Way also achieved these outcomes in 2016-2017:

- For the 2016-17 academic year, 1,640 children received scholarships and attended high-quality early childhood programs through the Indy Preschool Scholarship Program and On My Way Pre-K.
- 4,944 children at 72 participating child care providers received a book each month from September through May through United Way’s Early Readers Club partnership with the Indianapolis Public Library.
- United Christmas Service provided food, clothing and toys to more than 5,000 families.
- The Indy Energy Assistance Program provided utility assistance to 18,661 households with nearly $10 million in relief provided.
- In 2016, Winter Assistance Fund helped 587 families stay warm.
- 2,192 shelter beds were filled by homeless individuals and families during the coldest nights of the year thanks to the Winter Contingency Fund partnership between United Way and Wheeler Mission.
OUR CHAMPIONS IN THE FIGHT.
