2021 Impact Report

Creating Livelihood Opportunities for Refugees
Dear MRC Supporters:

What a year 2021 has been! I am constantly amazed and inspired by the resiliency and continuous hope that our team exhibits each day while working together to create a better future for themselves and their families.

From Winter Storm Uri that affected much of Central Texas to the devastating crisis in Afghanistan which deeply impacted our Afghan team members, as well as the ongoing pandemic, 2021 was quite a year for the Multicultural Refugee Coalition (MRC). Many team members have expressed how grateful they are to be a part of a community where they can come together each day to share each other’s burdens while continuously pushing forward.

One resounding word I heard from our community was connection. We have all desired to be together and deepen the relationships this community has formed.

The challenges of this past year forced us to reimagine what meaningful connection could look like for MRC and our programs. We pivoted to offering virtual English as a Second Language (ESL) classes rather than in person. Supply chain shortages highlighted the incredible importance of local food and fiber systems. Our pasture-raised eggs and Seed to Stitch line of sewn goods were both welcome additions to our diverse offerings in 2021. We were delighted to celebrate with you in person at our annual fundraiser – which was our most successful event to date!

MRC is excited for continued growth with a few new projects on the horizon. In 2022, we’ll be launching a line of sewn goods inspired by the artisan crafts of our team members at Open Arms Studio. This will allow us to expand our impact by employing artisans from home. We’ll also be introducing the “Traditional Provisions” program at New Leaf Farm which will give refugee farmers the opportunity to grow traditional foods from their countries while increasing food access and autonomy.

Throughout this Impact Report you will see the evidence of the many ways your support is impacting the livelihoods of refugee farmers and seamstresses. Thanks to each of you for being a part of MRC’s community and for connecting with us this past year. We couldn’t do this work without you and are looking forward to creating more opportunities for connection in 2022!

With much love and gratitude,

Meg Erskine,
CEO & Co-Founder
