Riverbrook Preserve is open to the public year-round for low-impact recreation. Hiking, skiing, and snowshoeing are all encouraged, and hunting is also permitted with permission.

The 371-acre Riverbrook Preserve was purchased in 2014 thanks to a generous contribution from an anonymous donor who recognized the importance of this historic farm for wildlife habitat and connectivity within the watershed. Since the gift stipulated that the house and associated buildings could be sold, a 25-acre homestead was created and protected by a conservation easement before sale, ensuring that the entire parcel would be protected from future development.

Parts of the River Loop trail can be very muddy in the spring, but you can walk along the river and return along the same path. In order to maintain the ecological integrity of this preserve, the use of wheeled or motorized vehicles is limited to snowmobiles on the designated trail.
