

Version control

It is always the latest version that is displayed, but if necessary, you can go back to previous versions to compare and check adjustments.

It is also clear which version each comment belongs to – in the activity flow to the right of the page. See example below.

Upload a new version by clicking on the upward-pointing icon under each file, or via "Upload" in the review page.

At this time, we do not support version control of video. You can replace these as usual but not compare with older versions in the same view.

All activity is logged in the list on the right in the review page, everything from uploads, downloads, comments, status changes and sharing history.

Here, it is clear which version each comment belongs to. Read more about how the activity flow works in the info sheet "Activity feed".
