What is the role of the World Economic Forum (WEF) and The Global CEO Initiative on Alzheimer’s Disease (CEOi) in DAC?

The World Economic Forum and The Global CEO Initiative on Alzheimer’s Disease developed the initial concept for DAC, beginning in 2019. Today, both organizations have representation on DAC’s Board of Directors and maintain day-to-day management and engagement with its operations.

How will DAC proceed after its 5-year plan has ended?

DAC is currently focusing on executing its 5-year plan. Its continuation or activities after the 5-year period will be determined at a later date.

What are the similarities between DAC and organizations like Gavi and CEPI?

The unprecedented global response to infectious diseases offers lessons for the growing health crisis of Alzheimer’s. Most importantly, Gavi and CEPI show that a broad coalition of stakeholders – governments, healthcare professionals, international organizations, the private sector, scientific organizations, and the public – can mobilize quickly to address a looming public health catastrophe. This is the approach we have taken for Alzheimer’s through DAC.
