Jason Call Campaign Achieves Record Fundraising in Q1 2022

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Jason Call, a progressive Democratic candidate for the U.S. House in Washington's Second District, raised over $32,000 in the first quarter of 2022. With an average contribution of about $22, this is the most raised in a quarter by the Call campaign in this election cycle.

Since launching his campaign in December 2020, Call has now raised over $117,000 to challenge 21-year incumbent moderate Democratic Representative Rick Larsen in the August 2, 2022 top-two primary.

100% of contributions to Jason Call came from individual donors whereas Rep. Larsen had two-thirds of his campaign's fundraising this quarter come from political action committees including Amazon and Boeing. Call is running a grassroots campaign with the momentum of over 1,300 contributions from individuals in the first quarter alone – hundreds more than the incumbent.
