Hello Len,

I am writing to present options for the Midcoast Community Council's participation in the upcoming Connect the Coastside virtual meetings. Of course, the Council members could participate in the same manner members of the public, listening and engaging individually, including participation in one of the breakout groups to be formed during the meeting. Alternatively, the Council members could be "listeners" during the breakout group session, and "rove" between the many breakout groups to hear what different folks are saying with regard to the questions posed. We wanted to give the Council members the opportunity to choose how to participate and also, we could accommodate a mix of roles, some participating, and some roving, if that was preferable. Thanks for passing this along to your colleagues on the Council.

Best,
Joe
