What They Wanted Us to Know: Disinformation, Rumors, and Ignorance in the Holocaust

Antisemitic disinformation was a hallmark of the Nazi regime. This lecture explores how the Germans used disinformation to control Jews and the general population and relevance of their methods to our own harrowing information environment.

Not Tevia's Shtetl: The Real Story of our Ancestral Towns and What's Happening There Today

Most Jews around the world can trace their roots to small towns, shtetls, in Eastern Europe. What remains of these hallowed places? What is being done to preserve Jewish heritage in places where Jews are absent?

Battles Over the Holocaust: Polish-Jewish Memory Wars

In the aftermath of World War II, Poles believed that Polish Catholics and Jews suffered equally, while Jews considered Polish antisemitism and indifference important factors in their tragedy. This talk will explore memory politics in Poland today and efforts at reconciliation.

Dr. Zachary Mazur

Dr. Mazur earned his PhD at Yale University. His forthcoming book is about Jews, Ukrainians and Poles in Poland's economy during the 1920s and 1930s. He is currently Senior Historian at POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews in Warsaw.

POLIN Museum

POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews recovers the history and memory of Polish Jews and fights antisemitism and xenophobia. Facing the Monument to the Ghetto Heroes, POLIN Museum stands on the site of the Warsaw ghetto and prewar Jewish neighborhood. Winner of the 2016 European Museum of the Year Award, POLIN Museum's multimedia exhibition presents the 1000-year history of Polish Jews, once the largest Jewish community in the world.

American Friends of POLIN Museum

American Friends of POLIN Museum of the History of Polish Jews is a 501(c)(3) organization that supports POLIN Museum through a strategic partnership with the Association of the Jewish Historical Institute of Poland. The Association, which is the oldest and largest Jewish philanthropic organization in postwar Poland, initiated and co-founded POLIN.
