

Oh Little Girl

Why was the lighthouse dark? wasn't anyone at home?
Oh little girl, tell me, why did you have to go it alone?

I can't hold back the tears for that precious little girl tossed to and fro in a very confusing world couldn't I have been a teacher that maybe made your day?

or perhaps a mailman that smiled as we both went our way?

I wish I could have been someone somewhere in your life that could have held that little girl, and removed a little of her strife you must be precious to God because His angels walked with you and he has blessed you greatly and I'm sure He is not through and that smile you wear is real every where you are

how did you cover that scar?

for your beauty is not just skin deep and your joy is very real you have a happiness now that no one can ever steal the journey from the little girl to the woman you are humbles me, ever so humbles me what a beautiful woman you are
