Keynotes

Paul Dragos Aligica

Paul Dragos Aligica is KPMG Professor of Governance at the University of Bucharest, a Senior Research Fellow in the F. A. Hayek Program for Advanced Study in Philosophy, Politics and Economics at Mercatus Center at George Mason University, and a Senior Nonresident Scholar with The Center for Governance and Markets at the University of Pittsburgh. In 2023, he was elected as a Member of The Academy of Europe - Academia Europaea. He is the author of numerous books, including Institutional Diversity and Political Economy: The Ostroms and Beyond (Oxford University Press, 2018).

Mario L. Small

Mario L. Small, Ph.D., an expert on personal networks, social inequality, urban poverty, and field methods, is Quetelet Professor of Social Science at Columbia University. A University of Bremen Excellence Chair, and an elected member of the National Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences, and the Sociological Research Association, Small has contributed empirically creative, innovative works to research on how social, neighborhood, and organizational contexts affect people's ability to meet their needs. Small has demonstrated that people's social capital—including how many people they know and how much they trust others—depends on the organizations in which they are embedded. His most recent book is Someone To Talk To: How Networks Matter in Practice (Oxford University Press, 2017).

Nava Ashraf

Nava Ashraf is Professor of Economics at the London School of Economics and Political Science. She is also Co-Director of the Psychology and Economics program at STICERD, and Founder and Director of the Altruistic Capital Lab in the LSE Department of Economics. Professor Ashraf's research combines psychology and economics, using both lab and field experiments to test insights from behavioural economics in the context of global development in Africa, Latin America, and Southeast Asia. She also conducts research on questions of intra-household decision making and gender norms in the areas of finance, fertility, and labor force participation. Her field experiments on health services delivery and educational investment have been carried out jointly with the Ministries of Health and Education in Zambia, using a model of co-generation of knowledge, reaching national and global scale.

Keynotes

Margaret Levi

Margaret Levi is Professor of Political Science and Senior Fellow at the Center for Democracy, Development and Rule of Law (CDDRL) at the Freeman Spogli Institute (FSI) at Stanford University. Levi is currently a faculty fellow at CASBS and Senior Fellow at the Woods Institute for the Environment, co-director of the Stanford Ethics, Society and Technology Hub, and the Jere L. Bacharach Professor Emerita of International Studies at the University of Washington. She is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the British Academy, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, and the American Association of Political and Social Sciences. In 2014 she received the William H. Riker Prize in Political Science, in 2017 gave the Elinor Ostrom Memorial Lecture, and in 2018 received an honorary doctorate from Universidad Carlos III de Madrid.

David Schmitz

David Schmitz is Professor and Presidential Chair of Moral Science at West Virginia University's Chambers College of Business and Economics. Before WVU, Schmitz was Kendrick Professor of Philosophy and Eller Chair of Service-Dominant Logic at the University of Arizona. While there, he founded and served as Head of the Department of Political Economy and Moral Science. He is an editor of Social Philosophy & Policy. His most recent book is Living Together: Inventing Moral Science (Oxford University Press, 2023).

Economics With Attitude

Mercatus Center Fellowships expose participants to the ideas of mainline political economy and their real-world implications through robust discussion; provide financial assistance, exposure to scholars, and research experience; and connect fellows to an extensive alumni network.

Learn more about our fellowships and apply at students.mercatus.org!

“ The best students in our program find our ‘economics with attitude’ contagious, and go on to stellar careers in research, teaching, and public policy.

Our Sponsors

The Markets & Society Conference would not be possible without the generous support from our donors, particularly the John Templeton Foundation, and the collaboration of our partners, Liberty Fund and the Institute for Humane Studies.

The John Templeton Foundation takes its vision from the intellectual legacy of Sir John Templeton, seeking to catalyze discovery, explore life's big questions, and promote human flourishing. The work supported by the foundation crosses disciplinary, religious, and geographical boundaries.

Liberty Fund is a private educational foundation established to enrich the understanding and appreciation of the complex nature of a society of free and responsible individuals. Liberty Fund publishes insightful books, conducts engaging conferences, and offers thought-provoking online resources. These programs focus on the intellectual heritage of individual liberty from ancient times through our own. Liberty Fund does not engage in political activity or advocacy, nor in policy making.

Rooted in the classical liberal tradition, IHS is a non-profit organization that supports the achievement of a free society by connecting and supporting graduate students, scholars, and intellectuals who are driving human progress in critical conversations shaping the 21st century. IHS is hosting a Graduate Student Reception for students and faculty.

JOIN US NEXT YEAR

4th ANNUAL CONFERENCE

OCTOBER 17-20, 2025

CONFERENCE AND JOURNAL

The Markets & Society conference and journal aim to bring together scholars, students, and practitioners from various disciplines, ideological perspectives, and backgrounds who seek to advance inquiry on economies and communities, the potential for human flourishing, the nature and consequences of institutions, the possibility and limits of governance and resilience, the burdens, biases, and injustices that result from human interaction and institutions, and the conditions for cooperation.

The Markets & Society conference and journal are particularly interested in multi-disciplinary research grounded in mainline political economy.
