BAKLAVA

Traveling for days across the dunes of Morocco's quarters of the Sahara Desert, your group of nomads spot a town in the far distance. It's time to restock for the rest of your journey across the empty desert. The market is filled with treasures and people from all around. Someone invites you into their space with a welcoming glass of mint tea as is tradition. Just as we welcome you into our home, we're glad you stopped for a drink as you continue your journey. Cheers!

OUR BLEND OF VERMOUTHS

CINNAMON SMOKE

BANANA

From our hands to your table. The warmest of welcomes in most cultures is often shared over a beverage. Our Yemeni Qishr tea takes inspiration from the Rub al Khali Desert in much of the Arabian Peninsula, translated as “empty quarter”. The style of this cocktail comes from “the old quarter” cocktail, a Vieux Careé. Please enjoy.

ZAATAR SPICE

A bartender's morning snaquiri going full modern, this daiquiri takes its lead from the Dunes of the Jinn, in Northern Iran's Dasht-e Kavir Desert. These magical sand dunes provided the setting for Arabian Nights and Aladdin's Genie. With flavors of Persian Doogh, a streetside creamy yogurt drink, this daiquiri transforms into something funky and unexpected.
