

Nicole Martinez-LeGrand, Curator of Multicultural Collections at the Indiana Historical Society (IHS). She earned her undergrad from Marian College (now Marian University) and her masters in Museum Studies from IU - Indianapolis. She is the author of two books, Nicole is the co-author of Hoosier Latinos: A Century of Struggle, Service, and Success and Asian American Voices in Indiana (IHS Press).

Donna Sink, AIA, Director of Real Estate Solutions, IFF. IFF is a female-founded nonprofit that assists other nonprofits in facility and real estate needs through supporting inclusivity within community developments. Donna serves as Chair on the board of People for Urban Progress, an Indianapolis nonprofit that repurposes leftover materials into usable goods.

Eunice Trotter, Director of Indiana Landmark's Black Heritage Preservation Program. Eunice holds journalism undergraduate degrees and an MBA. She was the first African American editor at The Indianapolis Star and is the former owner of The Indianapolis Recorder. She has won numerous reporting and writing awards, and in 2017, Eunice was inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame. Her first book, "Black in Indiana," has received state and national first-place awards.

Moderator: Charlitta Peterson Winston, Senior Philanthropy Officer, Newfields. Her motto is, "Know your purpose." A native of Philadelphia, Charlitta Winston is a graduate of the historic Philadelphia High School for Girls (a 176 year old institution), and is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh. Winston currently serves on the Boards of Indiana Landmarks, the Indiana Historical Society, the Center for Congregations, The Circle City Chapter of the Links, Incorporated, and the African American Development Officers. She has lived in Indianapolis for nearly three decades.

Tamara Winfrey Harris, CSSGB, President, Women's Fund of Central Indiana. Tamara is a nationally renowned writer and speaker, focusing on issues of race and gender and their intersection with politics, popular culture and current events. She is the author of the award-winning book, The Sisters Are Alright: Changing the Broken Narrative of Black Women in America (Berrett-Koehler 2015) and Dear Black Girl: Letters from Your Sisters on Stepping into Your Power (Berrett-Koehler 2021), and A Black Woman's Guide to Getting Free (2024).

Danielle Shockey, CEO, Girl Scouts of Central Indiana. Danielle Shockey is the chief executive officer of Girl Scouts of Central Indiana, which serves 16,000 Girls and 10,000 adults across 45 counties in Indiana. A Girl Scout alum, Danielle's experience serving Indiana's youth spans a career of 20 years, including Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction for the Indiana Department of Education, college dean, school principal and classroom teacher.

Moderator: Sunny Lu Williams, President, TechServ. Sunny Lu Williams is dedication to lifting underserved communities via public education, public health, and public safety. Sunny is the 3rd generation of Taiwanese-American female ownership of TechServ, which supports and facilitates community impact programs. TechServ's culture is family-focused and grassroots-minded while enacting positive change. She returns to our series as a moderator - as she is a past speaker!

Lisa Fipps, celebrated, award-winning, and best-selling author who made a splash with her debut middle-grade novel, Starfish, winning 13 awards and is translated into over eight languages. Her second novel, written in verse, And Then, BOOM! was met with similar acclaim. An Indiana native, Fipps is an award-winning former journalist, and an award-winning former library marketing director. She currently lives in Indiana and has lived in Texas.

Moderators: Girl Scout Cadets

Jennifer Pace Robinson, President & CEO, The Children's Museum of Indianapolis. Jennifer has a background in archaeology, art history, theater and communication studies. She has served in an advisory capacity on education committees for local arts organizations. Pace-Robinson attended the Getty Leadership Institute program, Museum Leaders: The Next Generation and regularly presents at sessions of the Association of Children's Museums and the American Association of Museums. Jennifer holds a master's degree in education from Indiana University with a focus on museum studies and educational psychology.

Gigi Cabello, Healthcare consultant, Milliman. A molecular biologist by training, Gigi's work focuses on developing strategies to build healthier communities and supporting government agencies and other healthcare industry clients through policy design and implementation solutions. Gigi is an avid birdwatcher and docent at the Eagle Creek Park Ornithology Center, mentors with Project Stepping Stone, a college prep program for Indiana's top Latino students, and serves on the board of the Wayne Township Education Foundation.