Lake Minnetonka Sleddog Races...

A History

As a sample of Gary Lillie's artistic talents: a few years before he died in July of 2016, Gary Lillie emailed the author this painting he had done fairly recently.

Acknowledgements

Writing this brief history of the sleddog races on Lake Minnetonka has been akin taking a trip down memory lane. Not only was the author fortunate to have participated in many of the races, but she was also acquainted with most of the players. The sadness came, though, from learning in the course of her research of Gary Lillie's death in July 2016. Lillie's contributions to early North Star Sled Dog Club's history were significant.

The author is grateful to those who racked their memories to recall facts about these races. For most it was a long time ago, but for others, it seemed like yesterday. It was a joy to go back to another time and relive these events and make contact with the participants. Chuck Gould, especially, was a source of valuable information. An artist himself, he also graciously gave permission to use the drawing he did to commemorate the 1977 reenactment of the 1917 race from Winnipeg to St. Paul made by Dennis LaBoda and his friend Randy Herman. The 1917 race was made into a film in 1994, Iron Will. The author also extends her sincere thanks to Bethany Hway, who did the initial research for the events of the 1930s.

The author is grateful for having at her disposal the many old past issues of The Tugline. It was fun to reminisce in these old issues, many of which the author edited herself. She is also grateful to Joyce McWilliams of Bemidji, who years ago set up the archiving of the issues of The Tugline at Duluth's University of Minnesota (UMD) Library in the archives section. A trip there proved fruitful, and the people there were very helpful and glad that NSSDC had provided past issues to record and preserve an important piece of Minnesota history.

Note that the NSSDC logo shown here is the revised logo. The logo on page 7 is the original NSSDC logo designed by Chuck Gould.

A History of Sleddog Races on Minnesota's Lake Minnetonka

by Sally O' Sullivan Bair & Bethany Hway

Winter celebrations have always been a popular cold weather event in Minnesota. In the 1920s and '30s, a few of the cities in the Minneapolis-St. Paul metro area had winter festivities. The St. Paul Winter Carnival was perhaps the where neighborhood kids would hitch Fido up to whatever sort of sled they might have had at their disposal, and race around the lake for a half mile or more.

best known. Its mutt races, initially on Como Lake, were very popular and elicited a lot of press. However, Lake Minnetonka, on the western edge of the Minneapolis metro area, was not left out of the festivals and festivities. These celebrations usually included crowning of royalty and plenty of action for youngsters. Among the most popular was some kind of sled dog race, often a kids' race or a mutt race. A dog, a kid, a sled: a perfect combination.

In the 1930s, Excelsior, on Lake Minnetonka, held an annual "Klondike Day" as part of the WPA (Works Progress Administration)² recreation project's Hennepin County program of ice carnivals. The event featured the coronation of an ice princess and ice queen, a masque nighttime skating party, and a dog derby. The dog derby was held on College Lake, end in the 1930s, however. The 1970s began the golden age of dog sledding, or mushing, in Minnesota.³ It extended well into the 21st century, with subsequent sleddog activities being tied to North Star

Sled Dog Club (NSSDC). Unfortunately, lack of snow and personnel marked the decline of the sprint sector of the sport.

During its heyday, though, mushers would gather for a race and afterwards spend countless hours "talking dogs" and otherwise partying at a restaurant/bar or in the motel rooms. Distance racing hadn't yet come onto the scene, only sprint racing. Distance racing didn't catch on until the 1980 John Beargrease Marathon in Duluth.

In the 1970s, Excelsior saw a revival of sled dog racing. The greater Excelsior Area Chamber of Commerce sponsored a series of races with North Star Sled Dog Club (NSSDC)⁴, bringing in fun, annual winter festivity to the community. NSSDC had a vibrant membership. Its meetings were well attended and could sometimes get rowdy. Heated opinions abounded.

In this one-day, 1973 race, starting and finishing in The Commons, dog teams raced out to Big Island and around Smith Bay and Lafayette Bay. There were multiple classes, including a junior race. Hug-a-Husky buttons were sold at local shops, and hot cider, bratwurst and kraut sandwiches were served up as refreshments for racers and spectators alike.

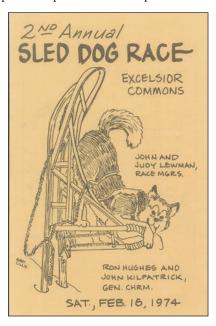

The 1973 Excelsior race brought 68 teams to the start chutes. With a purse of $300, it had a large field of entries: 8 teams in the Open Class A, running 12.5 miles; 9 in the 7-dog B Class, going 7 miles; 17 in the 5-dog C Class, running 5 miles; and 34 in the junior/novice class, running on a 1.75-mile trail. Many of the mushers went on to distance racing to carve out illustrious careers on the trails. Tim White went on to enter the Iditarod in Alaska in 1974 and carve out a career on the distance and mid-distance circuits. He later became president of the International Federation of Sleddog Sports and in 2019 Federation of the US Sleddog Sports. White, a structural engineer by training, also developed the

"quick change runner system," or QCRTM, for sled runners. This system allowed mushers to quickly change the plastic on the bottom of their runners without all the hassle of previous methods, which involved removing the glue on them, sanding it all off, and applying a different set of plastic. This is similar to what skiers do to adjust their skis to varying weather and snow conditions.

This era also capitalized on the family nature of the sport. The Hendricks family of Brainerd, the Kaspers in Brainerd, and the Hartigans of Big Lake all had their kids competing. Chuck Gould of Eden Prairie had his entourage of youngsters (his neighbor kids) entered. One of them, Dennis LaBoda, went on to be a distance racer living in Minnesota's Arrowhead in Hovland. And David Lee, son of Gene, was just getting started, racing in the Junior/Novice class. Rick and Annette Johnson of Mahtowa, Minnesota, were getting started in the sport, too. Rick later became the president of North Star Sled Dog Club for many years and was known for making cable gang lines. Annette went on to be the Tugline editor for many years. In these early years there developed a couple of relationships that ended in marriage. Dee Dee Holt and Dave Niswander and Cynthia Aultz and Mike Deck exchanged the "I do" vows.

In 1973, Mike Murfin, of Big Lake, who was running Dom Blodgett's coon hounds, placed first in the Open A Class, the class open to as many dogs as a musher wished to field. Other mushers have quipped that Murfin won because other teams could hear his dogs barking and shied away. Murfin, though, liked the speed of the dogs and their energy. They also seemed better able to handle the pressure.

Rick Birkholz, of Howard Lake,

clearly recalls this 1973 race, his first entry into the world of sleddog racing. With a cheering section from his place of work, he entered the 5-dog class with Ardis Wells dogs and no leader. He placed dead last, almost 20 minutes behind the team ahead of him and 30 minutes behind the leader. He was embarrassed beyond words. Said he: "I could have walked faster than they ran it! They stopped for everything, to pee, scoop snow, anything!" Other mushers, though, displaying their "Minnesota nice," came to Rick's rescue, offering him tips and better dogs. Rick returned Ardis's dogs and eventually hooked up with Mike Murfin and later Gene Lee and Mery Hilpipre of Iowa.

Ardis Wells was a story in itself. She was a professional country singer. Known as the "yodeling sweetheart," as part of a western band, Ardis played at the Grand Ole Opry and had many engagements in Minneapolis during the 1950s. She was inducted into the Minnesota Rock and Country Hall of Fame in 2005. Somewhere along the line, she found time to raise and race Siberian husky sled dogs from her Alexandria, Minnesota, home. They then became her prime interest, with her entertainment career taking second. Ardis was later known for the fancy pompoms she decked out her teams in; each dog had a pompom on its head whenever she raced. She lived to the ripe age of 95, dying in 2013.

Excelsior race, Gary Lillie, an art teacher, was instrumental in the planning and art work. This year saw 70 teams vying for prizes with a purse of $425. Lillie also contributed his talents to penning many cartoons for NSSDC. He was a musher and competed in the races with an "open class" dog team of 10 to 16 dogs. His wife, Joyce, was the first editor of NSSDC's newsletter, The Tugline. It was printed in purple ink on the old mimeograph machines. News of the 1974 race reached the pages of the Minneapolis Tribune newspaper, too. ⁵ This newspaper had a huge circulation throughout the Minneapolis area.

Merv Hilpipre entered the Minnetonka scene in 1974, capturing first place in the open class. Now, there is a character! A small man, not over 5'5", Merv was an auctioneer by trade. This hyperactive man kept so many dogs that he had a hard time remembering who was who. And his dogs were as hyper as their owner. Sally Bair recalls helping his 10-dog team to the start chutes in the 1997 Minnetonka race. It took a person holding each dog to get the job done. Unfortunately, the person holding the dog next to Bair's didn't have a good grasp, and the dog flew up hitting Bair squarely in the eye area, resulting in a doozy of a black eye. It was good that they were in a snowy area, for other mushers scooped up snow to ice-pack her eye area.

Hilpipre was also known for his announcing skills. At several races when there was little action in the staging area, Merv would make up an outlandish story about some catastrophe out on the trail. Handlers in the staging area got all anxious, but when their respective musher came over the finish line, these intrepid drivers were dumbfounded to be getting such questions about a happening that never happened! However, one cannot dispute Hilpipre's skills on the racing trails.

Rick Birkholz improved his standing in the 1974 race, rising from dead last in the 5-dog class in 1973 to 11th out of 19 teams, and ceding the red lantern to Rick Johnson. John and Judy Lewman of Mound, Minnesota, were the race managers, responsible for the planning and execution of a smooth event. Judy Lewman also was the editor of NSSDC's The Tugline at this time.

The Excelsior Chamber of Commerce and NSSDC planned for a 1975 race, but, unfortunately, the Chamber decided to cancel the event because the date, March 1st, was thought to be too late to safely build a trail on the lake. That ended attempts to stage a sleddog race until 1980.

The 1980 race partnered with T-Butcher Block Restaurant and was set up in Excelsior at the T-Butcher Block Restaurant –since torn down– at the old Excelsior Amusement Park. The purse was $1000. T-Butcher Block was a lovely restaurant on the lake, and the proprietors provided morning coffee and rolls for racers and spectators. The mushers meeting was held at 8:00 AM before the race start. By the 1980s, most races were two-day events. Also by 1980 the Hartigan, Hendricks, and Kasper kids had grown up and left the nest, and Charlie Gould's entourage mostly had moved on.

Charlie Gould was instrumental in planning the 1980 race and laying out and grooming the trail. Working closely with Gould was his good friend, John Cooper, whose favorite pastime was announcing. He stood on the back of a pickup truck and took the mic like a pro. He knew the racers and the dogs. And...he didn't concoct stories when there was a lull in the activities. Gould and Cooper worked hard to get good trail lengths: the Open class ran a trail of 16 miles; the 7-dog was 10 miles, the 5-doggers ran 5 miles, and the junior/novice

Trail preparations were usually a problem. On a big lake such as Minnetonka, when laying in and building the trail, one had to be mindful of overflow places as well as the ice roads leading to fish houses...and the fish houses themselves. Sally Bair recalls the 1998 race where her experienced leader, for some reason, took the ice road, and she had everything in her power to avoid the fish houses. A snow hook wouldn't catch on such glare ice. Also at this time snowmobiles, which had become very popular, could create a problem. A great trail might be all in by Friday only to be wrecked by snowmobiles that night. Grooming the trail was a difficult task. often made harder by strong winds and cold.

However, NSSDC had a solid plan for staging races. Race judges were secured and responsibilities carefully delineated. Bob Jones, who was from Cannon Falls and president of NSSDC, was the race manager and chief judge. A veterinarian was "on call," and NSSDC had a set of carefully thought-out race rules. John Cooper was the announcer. This race went off very smoothly since it started at an early hour, before the snow-mobilers could congregate and interfere with the teams. Snowmobilers generally were known to be late risers on the week-ends.

Another proverbial problem was either loose neighbor dogs or people who insisted on bringing their pet canines to the race site. On her Sunday heat Sally Bair encountered a man way out on the trail with his small dog right in the middle of her path. That was an anxious moment, and she lost some time trying to avoid the little animal. Luck prevailed, though; the little dog got safely back into the arms of its owner.

Jump to the 1990s. North Star Sled Dog Club joined forces with the Northwest Tonka Lions Club for a series of races. NSSDC had, along with most races, switched its format from odd-numbered teams to even-numbered teams. It also put more emphasis on the 10-dog class rather than the open class. The total purse for the 1995 race was $3500, a substantial improvement over the 1970s. The 1995 race, held within walking distance from the Mound VFW, saw the addition of skijoring into the classes of events. Gale Havrilla, an accomplished skier, ran a pair of standard poodles and garnered a lot of attention. Sixty-five teams made it to the start chutes on the first day. Rick Johnson was trail boss and had a hard time laying in a trail. There was little snow, and what there was had gone through a major melt and refreeze. Mushers were given the choice of withdrawing with no penalty and money back. Several did. Some withdrew after the first day, and all trails had to be cut back to 3.5 miles due to the bad snow conditions. Dave Parish of Elk River lent his photographic talents to the race, taking pictures.

The 1996 race was the year of Prancer's Perils. Prancer was Canadian musher Dave Hochman's lead dog. She managed to escape her handler and took off for parts unknown. [See article from The Tugline, March, 1996.] Ninety-four teams signed up for this 1996 event, vying for a purse that was $5000. Again, NSSDC partnered with the Northwest Tonka Lions Club. As usual, trail conditions were iffy. Joe Cappuccino, with his 10-dog team, remembers getting off the trail and running alongside a feeder stream. Unable to set a snow hook, he seriously entertained thoughts of drowning and was downright scared. He breathed a big sigh of relief when a snowmobile appeared, having been sent out to rescue him.

The 1997 race was cancelled. It seems that although there was plenty of snow, it fell too early before the lake could properly freeze, opening up potentially dangerous overflow conditions.

However, a race in 1998, with a purse of $7500, went off but with the usual adverse trail conditions. According to musher Steve Bergemann, when the competitors arrived at the race site on Saturday morning, they were greeted by a DNR (Department of Natural resources) official who announced that there had been a "fish boil" the previous night, and part of the trail would have to be rerouted. He explained that a fish boil occurs when a bunch of fish congregate and cavort in the same place, thawing the ice. Was this some sort of feeding frenzy maneuver? A full moon? Who knows? Such a phenomenon was news to everyone.

Although Saturday was warm, Sunday's temperatures rose to a warmer 41°, making for a slushy trail for the 10dog and 6-dog classes. Because of the fish boil and the warm temperatures, all classes, therefore, ran the same, 3.6-mile trail both days. Since all classes ran the same trail, it's interesting to compare the times for the different classes to see how the number of dogs affected times. Steve Bergemann won the 10-dog class with a total time of 20:36.94. Merv Hilpipre took first in the 4-dog class with a time of 22:21.54. [See appendix for all race results.] The 1998 race was the last one on Lake Minnetonka, which NSSDC deemed to have snow conditions on the lake that were unstable and not conducive to staging a good and safe race.

This hiatus lasted until 2020 when a group of enterprising mushers and mushing fans formed a committee to revive the Klondike Derby, this time making it a mid-distance race and spearheaded by Bethany Hway.

The Perils of Prancer

by Lorrie Ham & Sally Bair

The following story was first reported in The Laker newspaper, Mound, Minnesota, Saturday, January 27, 1996, by Lorrie Ham, staff writer for The Laker. It is reprinted from The Tugline, March 1996.

Prancer is home.

The two-year-old sled dog, who belongs to Dave Hochman of Winnipeg, was in Mound, Minnesota, the weekend of January 13 and 14 for the Westonka Winterfest Sled Dog races on Lake Minnetonka. Prancer is the lead dog for Hochman's second 10-dog team.

During the Saturday races, Hochman's first 10-dog team left the gate, and Prancer got a little excited. While handlers tried to hold her back, she broke loose and took off after her teammates.

Mushers and spectators saw the loose dog, and a wild chase ensued. Eventually several snowmobilers circled the canine and tried unsuccessfully to catch her. Prancer broke through and took off, disappearing under a bridge and off onto land while spectators and mushers looked on helplessly. The local police and radio station were notified of the loose soul, who was all dressed up in a harness and ready to go sledding.

On Saturday afternoon there were a few spottings of Prancer, but no one was able to catch her. On Sunday the animal still hadn't been found, and after two days Hochman was forced to abandon his search for Prancer, and he headed back to Winnipeg with the rest of his dogs.

Bobbie, Stephanie, Justin, and Jay McCoy of Independence, Minnesota, a small town about five miles from the race site, had also been to the races and had seen Prancer get loose. On Monday afternoon, January 22, Stephanie, Justin, and Jay went out to their barn to feed and tend their animals, and there was Prancer, huddled in the shadows, hungry and tired. How long she had been for almost ten days no one knew. At last, however, Prancer was rescued! She seemed delighted, too, to be in human hands again.

The children's mother, Bobbie, quickly notified neighbors and NSSDC members and mushers Dan and Cathy Moll that they had found the missing dog. Having competed in the Westonka races, the Molls were well aware of Prancer's situation

Prancer was taken to a local vet and treated for some minor injuries. A gash on her leg needed stitches, and when she was found, her harness had slipped around one of her legs and caused some chafing. She also was weak and had obviously lost some weight. The Molls presumed that she had made some meals on the cats' food in McCoy's barn, for she had diarrhea for a few days after being found. Otherwise, she appeared to be in good health, considering the harrowing experience she had suffered. Although Prancer would most likely miss the rest of this year's races, the vet reported that she would be as good as new for next year.

The Molls took the dog home, where she stayed in a dog kennel in their dining room until she appeared stronger and was well on her way to recovering from the diarrhea. The Molls also seemed to feel that psychologically she was okay as well. In fact, said Cathy, "We fell in love with her. She was so well behaved! It was like a miracle that Prancer made it through this ordeal!"

The Molls also quickly got in touch with Hochman, who by this time had given up almost any hope of ever recovering Prancer. Needless to say, Hochman was extremely happy to learn that his leader had been found in good shape and would soon be on her way home.

Musher Clyde Dockter of Brainerd, Minnesota, who just happened to own Prancer's mother, offered to get Prancer from the Molls. Hochman then made the trip from Winnipeg to Brainerd and retrieved the wayward canine. Cathy Moll reported that she saw Prancer at the Winnipeg races, "wagging her tail and looking perfectly happy." For their part in the happy ending, the McCoy children received a monetary reward from Hochman.

About the Authors

Sally O'Sullivan Bair was a limited class musher who retired from a secondary special education teaching career (learning disabilities and remedial reading) and hung up her harnesses in 1999 after 22 years on the trails. She was then appointed to a position as secretary general for the International Federation of Sleddog Sports (IFSS), serving until 2012. She traveled a great deal in this position, meeting with mushers worldwide. She subsequently became the secretary for the US Federation of Sleddog Sports, a position she still holds. She is also a certified IFSS canine doping control officer. She was the editor for North Star Sled Dog Club from 1993 to 2016 and regularly designed and put out the club's brochures and flyers as well as The Tugline. She now lives with her partner Doug on Lake Berthiaume in Buffalo, Minnesota.

Bethany Hway is founder of the Lake Minnetonka Klondike Dog Derby and serves as the President of the Board of Directors and Race Coordinator. She owns Grayscale Business and Brand Building, a strategy-driven design company in Excelsior, Minnesota. Bethany is a brand consultant, graphic designer, and visionary with a passion for helping small businesses and organizations succeed and grow. Growing up in the woods of Northern Minnesota, Bethany was born into mushing. With her mother and father, Joyce and Stan Passananti, she raised and raced sled dogs for many years, competing in her own races and handling for her dad's races in the Midwest, Maine, and Alaska.

Bethany moved to the Twin Cities in 2003 to pursue a degree in graphic design. She now lives near Excelsior with her husband and their three young children. She enjoys spending time in her hometown of Ely, hiking the deserts and mountains of western US, adventuring to national parks with her family, cooking, reading, and learning new things.

The Tugline, March 1974:

February 16th was sunny and calm with temperatures around 30 degrees – a fantastic day for the spectators who turned out in droves to eat bratwurst sandwiches and watch the Excelsior race. Granted, it was a little warm for the dogs, but more than 70 teams showed up! The trail was very good and easy to follow, and the race ran smoothly once stray dogs were caught and tied up.

Despite their problems this year, Mike and Sally Murfin didn't let Excelsior down. Mike, definitely a "favorite son" in Excelsior, showed up driving a team of newly acquired coonhounds!

The "Dead Heat" race, sponsored and run by Tufty Dog Food and the Excelsior Farm & Garden Store was won by Mike Hines of Anoka. Mike received a trophy and $100 for having the fastest 3-dog team on a ¼ mile track. Jim Bixler, of Excelsion Farm & Garden, promises to be a little more organized next year and run an even better "Dead Heat" race.

With the number of teams showing up at these one-day races, next year we'll be taking advance registrations for entries and also be starting earlier so that all the teams can be run before dark!

Westonka Winterfest Winner's Circle

Mound, Minnesota • $7500 purse February 14-15, 1998

Temperatures were around 32°F. on Saturday with a somewhat undefined but hard packed trail. Sunday's temperatures rose to 41°F., making for a slushy trail for the 10-Dog and 6-Dog teams. Due to warm temperatures preceding the race, all classes ran the same, 3.6 mile trail. Times are in minutes and seconds and hundredths.
