FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — The 76th annual Coconino County Fair returns Labor Day weekend, Friday, Aug. 29 through Monday, Sept. 1, at the Fort Tuthill County Park fairgrounds. For more than seven decades, the county fair has celebrated agricultural traditions, community spirit and family fun. This year's event promises four full days of entertainment, contests, rides, food and unforgettable memories.

The fair draws thousands of visitors each year from across Arizona and beyond, featuring award-winning livestock shows, vibrant local exhibits, diverse food vendors, thrilling carnival rides and nonstop live entertainment.

Entertainment lineup

This year's Main Stage headliners bring a mix of country, rock, Latin and tribute performances:

In addition to Main Stage concerts, the Variety Stage will feature magic, comedy, juggling and dance acts, including Eric Buss, Leapin' Louie and James Reid: Dangerously Fun Juggling.

Agriculture, exhibits and competitions

True to its roots, the county fair showcases 4-H and FFA livestock competitions, small stock shows and agricultural demonstrations. Visitors can explore hands-on workshops and browse community displays featuring art, photography, crafts and culinary talents.

The Northern Arizona Antique Tractor and Engine Association will once again display historic agricultural equipment, while longtime partners including the Fort Tuthill Military Museum, Flagstaff Model Railroad Club, and Flagstaff Gems and Minerals will be open for visitors.

Daily contests, including pie-eating, costume shows and the RC Course Competition at the KC HiLiTES booth, add to the interactive fun.

Food, vendors and family fun

The fairgrounds will be filled with local food vendors, artisans, nonprofit groups and commercial booths, alongside classic carnival rides and games. Visitors are encouraged to stop for a photo with Coco the Cow, the fair's official mascot.
